Administrative/Biographical History

Brief history of the Union Colony Pioneer Society

The association originally called the Society of Union Colony Pioneers was organized on February 22, 1895 at a meeting called by Henry T. West. On July 4 of that year, the Society marked not only the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Union Colony but its own silver anniversary as well, at a grand celebration in Lincoln Park.

The Society was given a formal structure quite early, officers being appointed at that first organizational meeting, according to a typewritten, anonymous account found in this collection. J.J. Armstrong was appointed chairman and Mrs. M.A. Brownell was chosen as secretary. Mr. Armstrong then appointed a committee to draft by-laws. Those responsible were J.A. Woodbury, Joseph Moore, H.C. Watson, C.A. White and Thomas Stimson. Temporary officers were elected as follows: H.T. West, President; B.S. LaGrange, Vice President; Mrs. M.A. Brownell, Secretary, and J.A. Woodbury, Treasurer. Those early members then decided the criteria for membership, set up a finance committee, and established an Executive Committee with the power to appoint any sub-committees needed in the future.

The official name of the new group was “The Society of Union Colony of Colorado Pioneers” and an initiation fee of $1.00 was established. Records reflect that 66 colonists signed the original roster and paid that fee. On April 19, 1895, the organization became permanent when the members approved the proposed by-laws. The day chosen for the anniversary celebration that year was the second Tuesday in June, which happened to be June 10. That celebration had to be postponed due to localized flooding, and was instead held on July 4. The annual celebration was later expanded to include commemorating the approximate date on which water first flowed in the irrigation ditches of the Union Colony.
