Administrative/Biographical History

Brief History of City of Greeley Historic Preservation

The City of Greeley Historic Preservation Office aims to preserve the history of buildings in the Greeley area. To do so, they ensure that the characteristics that make the specific properties unique and important to the history of Greeley are preserved for future generations. They are also responsible for designating properties on the Greeley Historic Register and helping provide financial incentives for work on designated properties. They celebrated their 20th anniversary in 2015.

Brief History of the 7th Avenue Survey

In 2008, the City of Greeley received funding from a Certified Local Government grant through the Colorado Historical Society to conduct a comprehensive survey of 48 properties between 17th and 18th Streets and 6th and 8th Avenues. It was felt the houses there retain a fair amount of integrity as well as potential for architectural significance. The purpose of the survey was to comprehensively document the resources in the survey area and determine if properties are eligible for the National, State, or Greeley Historic Registers.

Kelly Courkamp, a consultant, completed much of the survey while Betsy Kellums, Historic Preservation Specialist for the City of Greeley, served as the overall project manager.

The survey resulted in the completion of 48 intensive-level Colorado Cultural Resource Survey Architectural Inventory forms. Of the 48 houses surveyed, nine homes were potentially eligible for the Greeley Historic Register and one home was potentially eligible for the Greeley Historic Register, Colorado State Register of Historic Places and for the National Register of Historic Places.

Brief History of the Wiebking House

Located at 1717 8th Avenue in Greeley, CO, the Wiebking House is an example of late 19th and 20th century colonial revival architecture. Built in 1902, it has a wood-frame rectangular plan and horizontal wood siding, a sandstone foundation, decorative sills and lintels on all windows and doors and a gambrel roof with composition shingles, boxed eaves and dentil molding at the roof-wall junction. A full-width porch and distinctive gambrel end dominate the west façade.

Electrician Albert L. Lindner and his wife Nellie were the first listed occupants in 1910. In 1917, Harry J and Edith Gale Wiebking moved into the home. Mrs. Wiebking was born in Pennsylvania, but received her elementary and secondary education in Denver when her family moved there in the early 1900s. After receiving Bachelor's and Master's Degrees from Colorado State College, she taught in Greeley Public Schools. She married Harry Wiebking in 1910. He was president of the Goodman-Neill Clothing Company and later worked for Hibbs Clothing Company. Mrs. Wiebking was associate dean of women, director of the women's campus residence halls and professor of English at Colorado State College from 1918-1949. She also served as president of Delta Kappa Gamma, a national teachers' sorority. She died on January 17, 1967 and her husband died on September 5, 1968.

Brief History of the Pogue House

Built in 1904, this example of Classic Cottage architecture is located at 1714 8th Avenue. It has a sandstone foundation, vinyl siding and a hipped roof with asphalt shingles. Chimneys project from the center, southeast corner and north slope of the roof. A central dormer with a hipped roof and clad with asphalt shingles has a pair of rectangular ten-light windows.

Dr. G. R. Pogue, a specialist in lung diseases, and his wife, Rosalie, occupied the home. Dr. Pogue was also an incorporating member of the Greeley Gas Company. He passed away in 1919 and Mrs. Pogue passed away in 1959. Their daughter, Pauline Pogue, lived in the home. She received a Bachelor's Degree in pedagogy from Colorado Teacher's College in 1924 and a fellowship in history. She also completed an M. A. in history and taught at UNC for 42 years, where she oversaw the Lab School and served as the chair of the history department in 1966. She died in 1971.

Brief History of the Simpson House

The Simpson House is a west-facing Colonial Revival Home built in 1926. Located at 1722 7th Avenue in Greeley, it has a concrete foundation and wide horizontal wood siding. The roof has two parallel side-gabled roofs with clipped gable ends. The façade exhibits many Colonial Revival features, including a centered front door with a decorative pediment supported by square posts and a pair of multi-light windows covered by awnings on either side of the door. Two small, round dormers are centered above each pair of windows.

H. W. and Olive Riley were listed as the first occupants of the house in 1926. In 1936, Frank D. Simpson, a manager at HJ Heinz Company, his wife Myrtle and their son Jack moved into the home. On March 8, 1950, Jack Simpson was found dead in the home as a result of a gas leak from a garbage incinerator that had seeped into his basement bedroom. Tragically, Myrtle Simpson died of shock a few hours later. Mr. Simpson lived at the address until 1959. After that, the house had various owners and now serves as a rental property.

Brief History of the Hanna House

A Craftsman Bungalow style home, the Hanna House is located at 1743 7th Avenue. It features a concrete foundation, horizontal wood siding and a cross-gabled roof with asphalt shingles. All gable ends are covered with stucco and feature decorative braces. A central, shed roof dormer with side-by-side multi-light wood frame windows dominates the façade of the house.

Robert E. and Ola Hanna were the first residents of the home in 1918 and resided at the address for nearly fifty years until 1966. Mr. Hanna was born in Greeley in November 5, 1875; his parents George and Clara Hanna were members of the original Union Colony, as were his grandparents. Mr. Hanna was a rural postman in the Windsor area from 1899-1917, when he became the Weld County Assessor. He married Ola S. Alter in Windsor and the couple moved with their daughter, Marguerite, to Greeley in 1917. Mr. Hanna served three terms as the Weld County Assessor and also worked as a clerk to the county commissioners. He was a member of the Elks Lodge, Masons, and Odd Fellows. He was also a noted local historian who enjoyed sharing his memories of the early days of the Union Colony. After the death of the Hannas, the house changed hands several times. It was purchased in 1988 by Louise L. Kelley, who has resided there since the purchase.
